Dear Mums, Dads and Carers,

Next week we will be celebrating Poetry Week. This will mean that we will be learning all about children's laureate Alex Wharton and his poems from the book Daydreams and the Jellybeans. We will also be taking part in an online workshop with him to find out how to create our own poems.

Here is a link to his fun, playful poetry book if you would like to make a purchase for hilarious bedtime reading:

Throughout the week will be working towards writing our own poems that we would like to share with you on Friday 22nd November we would like to invite parents into school at 2:45pm to share the poems we have written and learnt. This will be held in the 3 downstairs classrooms (at the back of the school building). As the MUGA will be closed for PE lessons, please walk around the left entrance of the school (by the school hall). We will open classroom doors at 2:45pm and commence our class performances at 2:50pm.

If you have any questions, please discuss with your child's class teacher on the door.

Kind Regards,

Miss Larmour
